CAR LINGO

All show and no go.

Referenced to a car that had all the pretty chrome goodies, but wouldn't get out of its own way.

Bench Racing

When a few of guys are sitting down (on a bench, maybe) talking about how fast a certain person's car is, or discussing who could beat who in a drag race.

Chicken, To play

Two cars race toward each other; the first to pull to the side is the chicken (coward)

Chinese Fire Drill

Stop at a Red Light. Everyone on the Driver's side would run around and get in on the Passenger's side. Every-one on the Passenger's side would run around and get in on the Driver's side.

Cruising

Driving up and down the same street looking for races, girls, guys, etc.

Daddy's Car

A car that was very conservative looking; that might be owned by your parents.

Drag

To race another car a short distance (sometimes one block, sometimes two or three blocks) from a standing start at a stoplight when the light turned green. The term originally comes from the phrase "main drag", a combination of "main" or main street in town, and "drag" which referred to a car that was lowered in the back and dragged the ground if it hit a bump while racing or was just so low that it touched the ground if the street was not perfectly level.
